NEW QUESTION: 1NOTE: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution.After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen.You have an Azure Stack integrated system that runs in a connected environment.You need to recommend an interval for installing Microsoft software update packages to Azure Stack. The solution must ensure that you can receive Microsoft support.Solution: You recommend that Microsoft software updates be installed monthly.Does this meet the goal?A. No*B. Yes*Answer: B
Explanation:For your Azure Stack deployment to remain in support, it must run the most recently released update version or run either of the two preceding update versions.Microsoft will release update packages for Azure Stack integrated systems on a regular cadence that will typically fall on the fourth Tuesday of every month.Thus to remain in support you must be running one of the last three update versions and, as an update version is released every month, you need to install updates at least every three months.References:

NEW QUESTION: 2Standard Fiscal Years are periods that follow Gregorian calendar, but can start on the first day of any month of the year.A. False*B. True*Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3Which of the following threat types involves the sending of commands or arbitrary data through input fields in an application in an attempt to get that code executed as part of normal processing?A. Missing function-level access control*B. Injection*C. Cross-site scripting*D. Cross-site forgery*Answer: B
Explanation:ExplanationAn injection attack is where a malicious actor will send commands or other arbitrary data through input and data fields with the intent of having the application or system execute the code as part of its normal processing and queries. This can trick an application into exposing data that is not intended or authorized to be exposed, or it could potentially allow an attacker to gain insight into configurations or security controls. Missing function-level access control exists where an application only checks for authorization during the initial login process and does not further validate with each function call. Cross-site request forgery occurs when an attack forces an authenticated user to send forged requests to an application running under their own access and credentials. Cross-site scripting occurs when an attacker is able to send untrusted data to a user's browser without going through validation processes.
