NEW QUESTION: 1Oracle Cloud

Infrastructure (OCI) イベントのルール定義で使用できない2つの「アクションタイプ」オプションはどれですか？A. メールB. 通知C. 関数D. スラックE. ストリーミングAnswer: A,D Explanation: <https://docs.cloud.oracle.com/en-us/iaas/Content/Events/Concepts/eventsoverview.htm>
ACTIONS Event Rules must also specify an action to trigger when the filter finds a matching event. Actions are responses you define for event matches. You set up select Oracle Cloud Infrastructure services that the Events service has established as actions. The resources for these services act as destinations for matching events. When the filter in the rule finds a match, the Events service delivers the matching event to one or more of the destinations you identified in the rule. The destination service that receives the event then processes the event in whatever manner you defined. This delivery provides the automation in your environment. You can only deliver events to certain Oracle Cloud Infrastructure services with a rule. Use the following services to create actions: Notifications Streaming Functions

Answer: C,D

NEW QUESTION: 3The Florida panther, known for its distinctive characteristics, including a kinked tail and cowlicks, is nearing extinction with the help of scientists and government officials. Though once abundant in Florida, by the end of the twentieth century, only approximately 30 Florida panthers remained. Efforts to preserve the panthers had focused on shielding them from human encroachment with the hope that they could develop sustainable numbers to survive as a species. However, pressure from development caused officials to grow impatient and shift their strategy and goals. In 1995, new breeds of female panthers were brought to Florida from Texas to bolster the population. The change has been dramatic. In 1990, 88% of the panthers in Florida had the distinct kinked tail. By 2000, five years after the introduction of the Texas panthers, not a single kitten born to the Texas females had a kinked tail. The breed known as the Florida panther is now on an expedited, ineluctable road to extinction- with the assistance of wildlife protection agencies. If the goal was to have any kind of panther in Florida, it has been realized. Since the introduction of the Texas panthers, the panther population in Florida has risen to approximately 80 mixed-breed panthers. However, this "success" could portend a tragic trend in wildlife management in the United States. We cannot and should not create genetically mixed species as a means of achieving a compromise between the needs of development and a species' survival. This type of species tampering is a perversion of the ideal of wildlife management and will irrevocably transform our national landscape. The author suggests that blame for the extinction of Florida panthers rests chiefly upon A. advocates of species preservation. B. scientists who suggested interbreeding as a solution. C. government officials who bowed to pressure from developers. D. developers who encroached upon protected areas. E. wildlife agencies that did not act sooner to protect the panther population. Answer: C Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Several sentences point the blame at government officials. The first sentence states that the panther "is nearing extinction with the help of scientists and government officials." The last sentence in the first paragraph reveals that officials opted for interbreeding because "pressure from development caused [them] to grow impatient." Finally, the third paragraph tells us that the interbreeding was "a compromise between the needs of development and a species' survival." Thus, the blame rests on officials who bowed to pressure from developers. The author does not state that developers are encroaching upon protected areas (choice b), and although fingers are pointed at scientists in the first sentence, nothing indicates that scientists suggested the solution (choice c). Choices d and e are incorrect because the passage does not mention advocates of species preservation or suggests that agencies did not act quickly enough. Rather, the problem is that agencies wanted to act too quickly.
