NEW QUESTION: 3 The scope and focus of the Business continuity plan development depends most on:
A. Skills of BCP committee
B. Scope and Plan Initiation
C. Business Impact Analysis (BIA)
D. Directives of Senior Management
Answer: C
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: SearchStorage.com Definitions mentions "As part of a disaster recovery plan, BIA is likely to identify costs linked to failures, such as loss of cash flow, replacement of equipment, salaries paid to catch up with a backlog of work, loss of profits, and so on. A BIA report quantifies the importance of business components and suggests appropriate fund allocation for measures to protect them. The possibilities of failures are likely to be assessed in terms of their impacts on safety, finances, marketing, legal compliance, and quality assurance. Where possible, impact is expressed monetarily for purposes of comparison. For example, a business may spend three times as much on marketing in the wake of a disaster to rebuild customer confidence."
