NEW QUESTION: 1Two-factor authentication can be circumvented through which of the following attacks?A. Man-in-the-middleB. Denial-of-serviceC. Brute forceD. Key logging
Answer: AExplanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:A man-in-the-middle attack is similar to piggybacking, in that the attacker pretends to be the legitimate destination, and then merely retransmits whatever is sent by the authorized user along with additional transactions after authentication has been accepted. A denial-of-service attack does not have a relationship to authentication. Key logging and brute force could circumvent a normal authentication but not a two-factor authentication.

NEW QUESTION: 2To minimize costs and improve service levels an outsourcer should seek which of the following contract clauses?A. Gain-sharing performance bonusesB. Penalties for noncomplianceC. Charges tied to variable cost metricsD. O/S and hardware refresh frequencies
Answer: AExplanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Because the outsourcer will share a percentage of the achieved savings, gain-sharing performance bonuses provide a financial incentive to go above and beyond the stated terms of the contract and can lead to cost savings for the client. Refresh frequencies and penalties for noncompliance would only encourage the outsourcer to meet minimum requirements. Similarly, tying charges to variable cost metrics would not encourage the outsourcer to seek additional efficiencies that might benefit the client.
