Answer: C
Explanation: Explanation
Directional antennas Directional antennas come in many different styles and shapes. An antenna does not offer any added power to the signal; it simply redirects the energy it receives from the transmitter. By redirecting this energy, it has the effect of providing more energy in one direction and less energy in all other directions. As the gain of a directional antenna increases, the angle of radiation usually decreases, providing a greater coverage distance but with a reduced coverage angle. Directional antennas include patch antennas and parabolic dishes. Parabolic dishes have a very narrow RF energy path, and the installer must be accurate in aiming these types of antennas at each other. Directional patch antenna Reference: https://www.cisco.com/c/en/us/products/collateral/wireless/aironet-antennas-accessories/product\_data\_sheet0918 Omnidirectional antennas An omnidirectional antenna is designed to provide a 360-degree radiation pattern. This type of antenna is used when coverage in all directions from the antenna is required. The standard 2.14-dBi "rubber duck" is one style of omnidirectional antenna. Omnidirectional antenna-> Therefore Omnidirectional antenna is best suited for a high-density wireless network in a lecture hall.
