NEW QUESTION: 1A. Option BB. Option AC. Option DD. Option CAnswer: AExplanation:Set the time balance as "last" when you want the parent value to represent the value of the last member in the branch (often at the end of a time period).Note:Essbase - Time balance propertiesThe tags :first,last,average,and expenseare available exclusively for use with accounts dimension members.Using this tag requires an accounts dimension and a time dimensionIf an accounts dimension member uses the time balance property, it affects how Essbasecalculates the parent of that member in the time dimension. By default, a parent in the timedimension is calculated based on the consolidation and formulas of its children. For example, inthe database in this scenarion, the Q1 member is the sum of its children (Jan, Feb, and Mar).However, setting a time balance property causes parents, for example Q1, to roll up differently.If you set the time balance as first, last, or average, set the skip property to tell Essbase what to dowhen it encounters missing values or values of 0.
