NEW QUESTION: 1Which of the following is true of biometrics?A. It is used for identification in physical controls and for authentication in logical controls.B. It is used for authentication in physical controls and for identification in logical controls.C. It is used for identification in physical controls and it is not used in logical controls.D. Biometrics has not role in logical controls.Answer: A*Explanation:When used in physical control biometric Identification is performed by doing a one to many match. When you submit your biometric template a search is done through a database of templates until the matching one is found. At that point your identity is revealed and if you are a valid employee access is granted.When used in logical controls the biometric template is used to either confirm or deny someone identity. For example if I access a system and I pretend to be user Nathalie then I would provide my biometric template to confirm that I really am who I pretend to be.Biometric is one of the three authentication factor (somethin you are) that can be use. The other two are something you know and something you have.Source: KRUTZ, Ronald L. & VINES, Russel D., The CISSP Prep Guide: Mastering theTen Domains of Computer Security, 2001, John Wiley & Sons, Page 38
