NEW QUESTION: 3How often should an independent review of the security controls be performed, according to OMB Circular A-130? A. Every year B. Never C. Every three years D. Every five years Answer: C Explanation: The correct answer is "Every three years". OMB Circular A-130 requires that a review of the security controls for each major government application be performed at least every three years. For general support systems, OMB Circular A-130 requires that the security controls be reviewed either by an independent audit or self review. Audits can be self-administered or independent (either internal or external). The essential difference between a self-audit and an independent audit is objectivity; however, some systems may require a fully independent review.
