NEW QUESTION: 2 Note: This question is part of a series of questions that use the same or similar answer choices. An answer choice may be correct for more than one question in the series. Each question is independent of the other questions in this series. Information and details provided in a question apply only to that question. You are implementing a Microsoft SQL Server data warehouse with a multi-dimensional data model. When testing a pilot version of the data warehouse, business users observe that the number of products in stock is inaccurate. The number of products in stock always increases and represents the total number of products that have ever been in stock. You need to correct the existing model and ensure that it reflects the number of in-stock products. You must not change the overall structure of the data model. What should you do? A. non-additive measure B. star schema C. dimension table reference relationship D. semi-additive measure Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3 Given: What is the result? A. Compilation fails B. True C. A NullPointerException is thrown at runtime D. True Answer: B Explanation: With the statement "bool[1] = new Boolean(null);" we are creating a wrapped Boolean object with value null. Java evaluates it to false since it cannot evaluate to true;
