NEW QUESTION: 1 Which must bear the primary responsibility for determining the level of protection needed for information systems resources? A. IS security specialists B. Senior Management C. Senior security analysts D. systems Auditors Answer: B Explanation: If there is no support by senior management to implement, execute, and enforce security policies and procedure, then they won't work. Senior management must be involved in this because they have an obligation to the organization to protect the assets. The requirement here is for management to show "due diligence" in establishing an effective compliance, or security program. It is senior management that could face legal repercussions if they do not have sufficient controls in place. The following answers are incorrect: IS security specialists. Is incorrect because it is not the best answer. Senior management bears the primary responsibility for determining the level of protection needed. Senior security analysts.
