Explanation:Modeling traffic is effectively a process of calculating or extrapolating expected data usage of an application based on understanding the data requirements of the application. Usage scenarios can be defined and data calculation can be performed based on the respective scenarios. However, modeling RTC traffic is only as useful as the information provided. There are certainly some published generic guidelines about utilization levels and user profiles, but they are not a replacement for obtaining accurate information on actual PSTN usage, peer calling, and conferencing usage.An Introduction to Network Assessment Concepts: Microsoft Unified Communications
