NEW QUESTION: 1 A small company has recently purchased cell phones for managers to use while working outside of the office. The company does not currently have a budget for mobile device management and is primarily concerned with deterring leaks of sensitive information obtained by unauthorized access to unattended phones. Which of the following would provide the solution that BEST meets the company's requirements?
A. Remote wiping
B. Disable removable storage
C. Full device encryption
D. Screen-lock
Answer: D
Explanation: Section: Application, Data and Host Security
Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Screen-lock is a security feature that requires the user to enter a password after a short period of inactivity before they can access the system again. NEW QUESTION: 2 Radiative forcings are changes imposed on the planetary energy balance; radiative feedbacks are changes induced by climate change. Forcings can arise from either natural or anthropogenic causes. For example, the concentration of sulfate aerosols in the atmosphere can be altered by volcanic action or by the burning of fossil fuels. The distinction between forcings and feedbacks is sometimes arbitrary; however, forcings are quantities normally specified in global climate model simulations, while feedbacks are calculated quantities. Examples of radiative forcings are greenhouse gases (such as carbon dioxide and ozone), aerosols in the troposphere, and surface reflectivity. Radiative feedbacks include clouds, water vapor in the troposphere, and sea-ice cover. The effects of forcings and feedbacks on climate are complex. For example, clouds trap outgoing radiation, thus providing a warming influence, while also reflecting incoming solar radiation and, thereby, providing a cooling influence. Current measurements indicate that the net effect of clouds is to cool the earth. However, scientists are unsure if the balance will shift in the future as the atmosphere and cloud formation are altered by the accumulation of greenhouse gases. Similarly, the vertical distribution of ozone affects both the amount of radiation reaching the earth's surface and the amount of reradiated radiation that is trapped by the greenhouse effect. These two mechanisms affect the earth's temperature in opposite directions. According to the passage, radiative forcings and radiative feedbacks can generally be distinguished from each other by A. the precision with which the amounts of radiative change can be determined B. whether the radiative change is global or more localized C. the altitude at which the radiative change occurs D. whether the amount of radiative change is specified or calculated E. whether the radiative change is directed toward or away from the earth Answer: D Explanation: According to the passage, radiative "forcings are quantities normally specified in global climate model situations, while feedbacks are calculated quantities

Which two are true when deciding the number of sessions for each application? (Choose two.) A. The HIGH consumer group can run up to 16 concurrent SQL statements in addition to 32 concurrent SQL statements in MEDIUM and LOW consumer group each B. The HIGH consumer group can run up to 16 concurrent SQL statements as long as MEDIUM and LOW consumer groups have 0 SQL statements C. The HIGH consumer group can run 3 concurrent SQL statements when MEDIUM consumer group has 0 SQL statements D. The MEDIUM consumer group can run 20 concurrent SQL statements when HIGH consumer group has 0 SQL statements E. The MEDIUM and LOW consumer group can run up to 16 concurrent SQL statements if HIGH consumer group has 0 SQL statements Answer: C, D Explanation:
