NEW QUESTION: 2Your company recently acquired another company. During a site visit and network audit, you recognize that the acquired company's private network address space overlaps with yours. You will eventually merge the networks, but for the moment, you must make communication between the networks work over the Internet as a first step toward the migration.What should you do to meet the requirements?A. Implement a static NAT at one site. B. Implement double NAT on both sites' public network-facing routers.C. Use source NAT to deliver the necessary translations between private and public networks.D. Migrate to multicast.

Answer: BExplanation:Double NAT occurs when both the source IP address and destination IP address leave the translating system changed. Double NAT is commonly used for merging two networks with overlapping address space. This has become an increasingly common scenario as more organizations have moved to using RFC 1918 private address space for their internal addressing in an effort to overcome public IPv4 address exhaustion. When these organizations merge, they are left with overlapping RFC 1918 addressing. In these cases, double NAT must be leveraged until systems can be readdressed.Reference: O'Reilly. Junos Security. NEW QUESTION: 3A. Option AB. Option B*Answer: AExplanation:DirectAccess by default enables split tunneling. All traffic destined to the corpnet is sent over the DA IPsec tunnels, and all traffic destined for the Internet is sent directly to the Internet over the local interface. This prevents DA clients from bringing the corporate Internet connection to its knees.is DA split tunneling really a problem? The answer is no. Why? Because the risks that exist with VPNs, where the machine can act as a router between the Internet and the corporate network is not valid with DirectAccess. IPsec rules on the UAG server require that traffic be from an authenticated source, and all traffic between the DA client and server is protected with IPsec. Thus, in the scenario where the DA client might be configured as a router, the source of the traffic isn't going to be the DA client, and authentication will fail - hence preventing the type of routing that VPN admins are concerned about. Reference: Why Split Tunneling is Not a Security Issue with DirectAccess You manage an Active Directory Domain Services forest that contains a root domain named contoso.com and a child domain named branch.contoso.com. You have three servers named SRV01, SRV02, and SRV03. All servers run Windows Server 2012 R2. SRV01 and SRV02 are domain controllers for the domain contoso.com. SRV03 is the domain controller for branch.contoso.com. User accounts and resources exist in both domains. All resources in branch.contoso.com are physically located in a remote branch office.
