NEW QUESTION: 3One of the discretionary accounts managed by Bill Farnsworth, CFA, is the Jones Corporation employees' profit-sharing plan. Diane Jones, the company president, recently asked Farnsworth to vote the shares in the firm's profit-sharing plan in favor of the company-nominated slate of directors and against the directors sponsored by a dissident stockholder group. Farnsworth does not want to lose this client because he directs all the client's trades to a brokerage firm that provides Farnsworth with useful information about tax-free investments. Although this information is not of value in managing the Jones Corporation account, it does help in managing several other accounts. The brokerage firm providing this information also offers the lowest prices for trades. Farnsworth investigates the proxy-fight issue, concludes that management's slate of directors is better for the long-run performance of the firm than those recommended by the dissident group, and votes accordingly. Farnsworth:A. did not violate the Standards in voting the shares in the manner requested by Jones nor in directing trades to the brokerage firm.*B. violated the Standards in voting the shares in the manner requested by Jones, but not in directing trades to the brokerage firm.*C. violated the Standards in directing trades to the brokerage firm, but not in voting the shares as requested by Jones.*Answer: A
