<https://aws.amazon.com/answers/networking/vpc-network-management-and-monitoring/VPC-Flow-Logs> capture network flow information for a VPC, subnet, or network interface in Amazon CloudWatch Logs. Flow logs can help you with a number of tasks, such as troubleshooting why specific traffic is not reaching an instance, which in turn can help you diagnose overly restrictive security group rules. You can also use flow logs as a security tool to monitor the traffic that is reaching your instance, to profile your network traffic, and to look for abnormal traffic behaviors. A common use of VPC flow logs is to watch for abnormal and unexpected denied outbound connection requests, which could be an indication of a misconfigured or compromised EC2 instance. CloudWatch Alerts can provide rudimentary network alerting on VPC Flow Logs, however AWS APN members provide third-party log management systems that provide extensive reporting, visualization, and alerting capabilities based on VPC Flow Log data.
