NEW QUESTION: 1 Clinical social work services are being provided for a family referred due to child sexual abuse by a guardian. The perpetrator is currently in jail, but will be released soon due to a lack of evidence. The children are fearful of his return, and the mother still claims his innocence. An adult daughter contacts the social worker with reports of her own sexual abuse by the same man many years ago. Her testimony is inconsistent with that of the younger children, and the perpetrator is sentenced to more jail time. Why was this information not a violation of confidentiality?
A. The other children consented
B. It involved child abuse
C. The judge ordered the testimony
D. The perpetrator had no rights while in jail
Answer: B
Explanation: In every state in the U.S., the law requires the state to investigate allegations of child abuse. This issue is a matter of law and it does not violate a person's right to confidentiality to provide requested evidence or testimony in the case where a crime has occurred. Children are 100% protected and a social worker must legally report any and all suspicions of child abuse regarding any person under the age of 18 or face prosecution themselves for failure to report it.

A. Sqoop can only read committed transactions from a source database, not uncommitted ones
B. When performing parallel imports, Sqoop always uses the primary key column in a table as the splitting column
C. By default, data is compressed with Sqoop
D. When performing parallel imports, each degree of parallelism corresponds to a concurrent database connection
Answer: A
Explanation: By default, Sqoop uses the read committed transaction isolation in the mappers to import data. This may not be the ideal in all ETL workflows and it may be desired to reduce the isolation guarantees. The --relaxed-isolation option can be used to instruct Sqoop to use read uncommitted isolation level.
