NEW QUESTION: 1 An enterprise-level customer has recently implemented a pair of bi-directionally IP replicated VNX systems for their highly transactional CIFS file-based environment and NFS Office systems. Each VNX has two storage pools of Flash RAID 5, SAS RAID 5, and NLSAS RAID 6 for source file systems and SAS. NL-SAS for destination file systems with multiple checkpoints are being taken each day and retained for 30 days. After a number of months, they have growing concerns that the replication performance has degraded. In addition, the amount of free space available in the source storage pools has been reduced to almost critical levels. They asked your advice on whether to utilize 16 unassigned NL-SAS drives to extend the pools or to purchase additional SAS drives. How would you advise the customer about the next step? A. Add 8 x NL-SAS drives to the source and destination pools on each system B. Create a new pool from the NL-SAS drives and relocate all SavVols to it C. Add 16 x NL-SAS drives to the source pool on each system D. Purchase additional SAS drives to increase the performance and pool sizes Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 2 A company has a 5-digit dial plan. A junior engineer inquires about the directory number external masks. Why are external masks used? A. to enable called number identification B. to associate a directory number with a SIP endpoint C. to convert the calling directory number to the PSTN routable calling directory number D. to block calling number identification Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3 Which protocol is superseded by AES? A. RC4 B. MD5 C. DES D. RSA Answer: C
Explanation: DES is now considered to be insecure for many applications. This is chiefly due to the 56bit key size being too small; in January, 1999, distributed.net and the Electronic Frontier Foundation collaborated to publicly break a DES key in 22 hours and 15 minutes (see chronology). There are also some analytical results which demonstrate theoretical weaknesses in the cipher, although they are infeasible to mount in practice. The algorithm is believed to be practically secure in the form of Triple DES, although there are theoretical attacks. In recent years, the cipher has been superseded by the Advanced Encryption Standard (AES). Furthermore, DES has been withdrawn as a standard by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (formerly the National Bureau of Standards).: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Data_Encryption_Standard
