NEW QUESTION: 1 Which are types of failover groups? (choose all that apply) A. Priority B. System-defined C. Clusterwide D. Next Available E. User-defined Answer: B,C,E Explanation: Types of failover groups Failover groups for LIFs can be system-defined or user-defined. Additionally, a failover group called clusterwide exists and is maintained automatically. Failover groups are of the following types: System-defined failover groups: Failover groups that automatically manage LIF failover targets on a per-LIF basis. This is the default failover group for data LIFs in the cluster. For example, when the value of the failover-group option is system-defined, the system will automatically manage the LIF failover targets for that LIF, based on the home node or port of the LIF. Note: All the network ports should be assigned correct port roles, and all the network ports of the same role should be in the same subnet. User-defined failover groups: Customized failover groups that can be created when the system-defined failover groups do not meet your requirements. For a system with ports of the same role connected to multiple subnets, each LIF requires a user-defined failover group with a failover group for each subnet. You can create a failover group consisting of all 10-GbE ports that enables LIFs to fail over only to the high-bandwidth ports. Clusterwide failover group: Failover group that consists of all the data ports in the cluster. This is the default failover group for the cluster-management LIFs only. For example, when the value of the failover-group option is cluster-wide, every data port in the cluster will be defined as the failover targets for that LIF." <https://library.netapp.com/ecmdocs/ECMP1401193/html/GUID-9600E800-B8E6-4A78B97B-912459BEFD63.html>

NEW QUESTION: 2 View the Exhibit. You are developing an account management system for First National Bank. The LayoutEditor for the Customer form is shown in the exhibit. The three buttons on the form invoke separate forms to enter deposits and withdrawals for the customer's checking, savings, and money market accounts. Often deposits and withdrawals to these accounts are accomplished as part of a single transaction, so they must all be committed together or all rolled back if the commit fails. How should you code the Checking button? A. OPEN_FORM('Checking',SESSION,NO_ACTIVATE); B. OPEN_FORM('Checking',SESSION); C. OPEN_FORM('Checking',SESSION,ACTIVATE); D. OPEN_FORM('Checking'); Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3 Your customer is experiencing significant degradation in the performance of Hive queries. The customer wants to continue using SQL as the main query language for the HDFS store. Which option can the customer use to improve performance?

A. HiveFastQL
B. native MapReduce Java programs
C. Impala
D. Apache Grunt
Answer: C
Explanation: Cloudera Impala is Cloudera's open source massively parallel processing (MPP) SQL query engine for data stored in a computer cluster running Apache Hadoop. Impala brings scalable parallel database technology to Hadoop, enabling users to issue low-latency SQL queries to data stored in HDFS and Apache HBase without requiring data movement or transformation.
