NEW QUESTION: 2You have a SharePoint server farm that uses several back end data sources. The back- end data sources require authentication. You create a secure store service App1ication. The farm does not have a Performance Point service App1ication. Security requirements in your organization prevent the use of Kerberos delegation. You plan to implement a new PerformancePoint service App1ication. You need to ensure that all new PerformancePoint dashboards can successfully access the back end data source. How should you configure the PerformancePoint service App1ication?A. Enable the Add this service App1ications proxy to the farms default proxy list setting.B. Configure the Unattended service account setting.C. Configure an App1ication pool that has access to the back-end data sources.D. Enable the PerformancePoint Services site and site collection features.Answer: B

Explanation: BURGOS MNEMO: "Kerberos" = "Unattended" In order to use PerformancePoint Services in Microsoft SharePoint Server 2010, you must configure a PerformancePoint Services service application. Once you have created the service application, you must provide data access to the users. This can be done by using the unattended service account, or by configuring Kerberos delegation. Configure PerformancePoint Services
