NEW QUESTION: 1 Which of the following are Resource Pool attributes? (Select all that apply.)
A. Reservation B. Expandable reservation C. Limit D. ram E. Memory Max F. CPU Shares
Answer: A, B, E, F
Explanation: CPU Shares Memory Shares Allows you to specify the shares for this resource pool. The basic principles are the same as for virtual machines, discussed in .Shares. Reservation Displays the amount of CPU or memory the host reserves for this resource pool. Defaults too. A non-zero reservation is subtracted from the unreserved resources of the parent (host or resource pool). The resources are considered reserved, regardless of whether virtual machines are associated with the resource pool. Expandable reservation If this check box is selected (the default), and if the resource pool needs to make a reservation that is higher than its own reservation (for example, to power on a virtual machine), then the resource pool can use resources of a parent and reserve those resources. Limit Displays the upper limit on the CPU or memory that the host allocates to the selected resource pool. Default is unlimited. This default avoids wasting idle resources. Deselect the Unlimited check box to specify a different limit. Resource pool limits are useful, for example, if you want to assign a certain amount of resources to a group administrator. The group administrator can then create virtual machines for the group as needed, but never use more resources than specified by the limit. page 27 Resource Management Guide

NEW QUESTION: 2 You send the same email campaign out on the first Tuesday of every month to announce the month's specials. You are interested in comparing how subscribers responded to the emails in the first three days following the send date during the last three months. How should you configure a report to do this?
A. Create a report with Dimension=Campaign-Launch Date for each campaign, desired performance measures, and date measure = Interval. Configure this measure to include 0 - 3 days from launch.
B. Create a separate report for each Campaign with performance measures within the Sent Date range for the first three days from launch. Export each report into Excel to assemble a summary report.
C. Select the 90-day Campaign Performance Report, select the campaigns and measures desired, and then just filter by "First 3 Days after Send".
D. Select the 30-day Campaign Performance Report, select just the campaigns desired, and the filter by "3 Days since Launch".
E. Create a report with Dimension=Campaign-Launch Date for each campaign and select the date measure= Sent Date. Configure this measure as of three days from launch.
