NEW QUESTION: 1What does enabling a sticky session with ELB do?A. Routes all the requests to a single DNSB. Ensures that all requests from the user's session are sent to multiple instancesC. Provides a single ELB DNS for each IP addressD. Binds the user session with a specific instanceAnswer: D
Explanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:By default, a load balancer routes each request independently to the registered instance with the smallest load. However, you can use the sticky session feature (also known as session affinity), which enables the load balancer to bind a user's session to a specific instance. This ensures that all requests from the user during the session are sent to the same instance.Reference:

63 130 270 SQL*Net message from client 8A. V$WAITB. V$SYSSTATC. V$SESSIOND. V$WAITSTATEE. V$SESSION_EVENTAnswer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3Output modules allow Snort to be much more flexible in the formatting and presentation of output to its users. Snort has 9 output plug-ins that push out data in different formats.Which one of the following output plug-ins allows alert data to be written in a format easily importable to a database?A. csvB. unifiedC. alert_fastD. alert_unixsockAnswer: A

NEW QUESTION: 4When creating a bounded task flow that uses ADF Business Components, which two steps do you need to perform to enable the task flow to manage its own transaction? (Choose two.)A. Define transaction properties at the task-flow level.B. Add the application module commit and rollback operations as buttons or links on the last JSF page of the flow.C. Define task flow return activities in the flow and associate "End transaction" attribute values with them.D. Include a phaseListener in a managed bean with methods for commit and rollback.Answer: A,C Explanation:Explanation/Reference:A: To enable a bounded task flow to run as a transaction:1. In the overview editor for the called bounded task flow, click Behavior and expand the Transaction section.2. Choose one of the following from the dropdown list:<No Controller Transaction>: The called bounded task flow does not participate in any transaction management.Always Use Existing Transaction: When called, the bounded task flow participates in an existing transaction already in progress.Use Existing Transaction If Possible: When called, the bounded task flow either participates in an existing transaction if one exists, or starts a new transaction upon entry of the bounded task flow if one doesn't exist.Always Begin New Transaction: A new transaction starts when the bounded task flow is entered, regardless of whether or not a transaction is in progress. The new transaction completes when the bounded task flow exits.D: 1. Select the task flow return activity in the called bounded task flow.2. In the Property Inspector, expand the Behavior section.If the called bounded task flow supports creation of a new transaction (bounded task flow specifies Use Existing Transaction If Possible or Always Begin New Transaction options), select one of the following in the End Transaction dropdown list:commit: Select to commit the existing transaction to the database.rollback: Select to roll back a new transaction to its initial state on task flow entry. This has the same effect as cancelling the transaction.References:
