A. RADIUS B. SSOC. MFAD. 証明書 E. Kerberos F. NAC Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2 Scenario 6A customer recently implemented an EMC Avamar solution in their primary data center. The environment consists of several Microsoft applications, including Microsoft SharePoint, Exchange, and SQL. An EMC Data Domain system was also deployed behind Avamar as the backup destination for these applications. There are also several file system clients that have been configured to back up directly to the Avamar server. One Avamar server and two Data Domain systems have been deployed to support this configuration. The Avamar server is operating close to full capacity and there is no room for expansion since it is already fully provisioned with the maximum number of nodes. The Data Domain systems have plenty of capacity left; each system is currently at 35% of utilization. Refer to Scenario 6. The customer realized that one of the SharePoint clients was incorrectly configured to be backed up to the Avamar server instead of the Data Domain system. How can this be fixed?

A. Reconfigure the client to Data Domain and perform a fastcopy operation to move the backup data to the intended system B. Create another Avamar domain with Data Domain as a device, and then move the client to the new domain C. Reinstall the SharePoint GLR plug-in, selecting Data Domain D. Reconfigure the client to Data Domain and perform a full backup Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3 A. Option E B. Option A C. Option B D. Option D E. Option C Answer: B,C

Explanation: A: Below we see a case where we set the row archival visibility parameter to "all" thereby allowing us to see all of the rows that have been logically deleted: alter session set row archival visibility = all; We can then turn-on row invisibility back on by changing row archival visibility = "active":alter session set row archival visibility = all;B: To use ora_archive_state as an alternative to deleting rows, you need the following settings and parameters:1.Create the table with the row archival clause2.Now that the table is marked as row archival, you have two methods for removing rows, a permanent solution with the standard delete DML, plus the new syntax where you set ora_archive_state to a non-zero value:update mytab set ora_archive_state=2 where col2='FRED';3.To make "invisible rows" visible again, you simply set the rows ora_archive_state to zero:create table mytab (col1 number, col2 char(200)) row archival; update mytab set ora_archive_state=0 where col2='FRED';Note:* Starting in Oracle 12c, Oracle provides a new feature that allow you to "logically delete" a row in a table without physically removing the row. This effectively makes deleted rows "invisible" to all SQL and DML, but they can be revealed at any time, providing a sort of "instant" rollback method.To use ora_archive_state as an alternative to deleting rows.

NEW QUESTION: 4What is the best use case for using the JeOS tools to build templates?A. Windows administrators looking for a wizard-based approach to template-building Windows templates.B. Windows administrators looking for a wizard-based approach to template-building Linux templates.C. Linux administrators looking for a command-line approach to template-building Linux templates.D. Linux administrators looking for a command-line approach to template-building Windows and Linux templates.E. Linux administrators looking for a command-line approach to template-building Windows templates.
