NEW QUESTION: 2Which of the following controls would allow a company to reduce the exposure of sensitive systems from unmanaged devices on internal networks?A. Password strengthB. 802.1xC. Data encryptionD. BGP
Answer: B
Explanation:Section: Threats and Vulnerabilities
Explanation/Reference:Explanation:IEEE 802.1X (also known as Dot1x) is an IEEE Standard for Port-based Network Access Control (PNAC).It is part of the IEEE 802.1 group of networking protocols. It provides an authentication mechanism to devices wishing to attach to a LAN or WLAN.802.1X authentication involves three parties: a supplicant, an authenticator, and an authentication server.The supplicant is a client device (such as a laptop) that wishes to attach to the LAN/WLAN - though the term 'supplicant' is also used interchangeably to refer to the software running on the client that provides credentials to the authenticator. The authenticator is a network device, such as an Ethernet switch or wireless access point; and the authentication server is typically a host running software supporting the RADIUS and EAP protocols.The authenticator acts like a security guard to a protected network. The supplicant (i.e., client device) is not allowed access through the authenticator to the protected side of the network until the supplicant's identity has been validated and authorized. An analogy to this is providing a valid visa at the airport's arrival immigration before being allowed to enter the country. With 802.1X port-based authentication, the supplicant provides credentials, such as user name/password or digital certificate, to the authenticator, and the authenticator forwards the credentials to the authentication server for verification. If the authentication server determines the credentials are valid, the supplicant (client device) is allowed to access resources located on the protected side of the network.

NEW QUESTION: 3Scenario: A network engineer plans to configure an Active Directory Server as the default authentication for a NetScaler deployment and provide users with the option to change their password if it is expired. Which two actions should the engineer take to configure this authentication requirement on the NetScaler system? (Choose two.)A. Configure Authentication server with allow Password change option.B. Configure Authentication server with SSO name attribute.C. Configure a pre-authentication policy.D. Select security type as SSL

on Authentication policy.Answer: A,D
