Always Encrypted*D. Encrypting FileSystem*E. Transparent Data Encryption*F. transport-level encryption*G. Bitlocker*Answer: F

NEW QUESTION: 3Which action is the vSmart controller responsible for in an SD-WAN deployment?A. distribute security information for tunnel establishment between vEdge routers*B. manage, maintain, and gather configuration and status for nodes within the SD-WAN fabric*C. gather telemetry data from vEdge routers*D. onboard vEdge nodes into the SD-WAN fabric*Answer: D*Explanation:The major components of the vSmart controller are:
+ Control plane connections - Each vSmart controller establishes and maintains a control plane connection with each vEdge router in the overlay network. (In a network with multiple vSmart controllers, a single vSmart controller may have connections only to a subset of the vEdge routers, for load-balancing purposes.) Each connection, which runs as a DTLS tunnel, is established after device authentication succeeds, and it carries the encrypted payload between the vSmart controller and the vEdge router. This payload consists of route information necessary for the vSmart controller to determine the network topology, and then to calculate the best routes to network destinations and distribute this route information to the vEdge routers. The DTLS connection between a vSmart controller and a vEdge router is a permanent connection. The vSmart controller has no direct peering relationships with any devices that a vEdge router is connected to on the service side (so answer C is not correct as vSmart only manages vEdge routers only, not the whole nodes within SD-WAN fabric).+ OMP (Overlay Management Protocol) - The OMP protocol is a routing protocol similar to BGP that manages the Cisco SD-WAN overlay network. OMP runs inside DTLS control plane connections and carries the routes, next hops, keys, and policy information needed to establish and maintain the overlay network. OMP runs between the vSmart controller and the vEdge routers and carries only control plane information. The vSmart controller processes the routes and advertises reachability information learned from these routes to other vEdge routers in the overlay network.+ Authentication - The vSmart controller has pre-installed credentials that allow it to authenticate every new vEdge router that comes online (-> Answer A is correct). These credentials ensure that only authenticated devices are allowed access to the network.+ Key reflection and rekeying - The vSmart controller receives data plane keys from a vEdge router and reflects them to other relevant vEdge routers that need to send data plane traffic.+ Policy engine - The vSmart controller provides rich inbound and outbound policy constructs to manipulate routing information, access control, segmentation, extranets, and other network needs.+ Netconf and CLI - Netconf is a standards-based protocol used by the vManage NMS to provision a vSmart controller. In addition, each vSmart controller provides local CLI access and AAA.Reference:
