NEW QUESTION: 2You have an Exchange Server 2013 organization named contoso.com that contains 10 servers.Your company purchases a company named Fabrikam, Inc. Fabrikam has an Exchange Server organization named fabrikam.com. All of the email messages sent between the organizations is routed over the Internet.You need to ensure that the email messages sent from contoso.com to fabrikam.com are encrypted.What is best way to achieve the goal? More than one answer choice may achieve the goal. Select the BEST answer.A. Instruct all of the users in contoso.com to use SMIME.B. Create a Send connector of type Partner.C. Create a federation trust between the organizations.D. Modify the Authentication settings for the Send connectors in contoso.com.Answer: BExplanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Create a Send connector to send email to a partner, with Transport Layer Security (TLS) applied If you want to ensure secure, encrypted communication with a partner, you can create a Send connector that is configured to enforce Transport Layer Security (TLS) for messages sent to a partner domain. TLS provides secure communication over the Internet.See step 2 below.In the EAC, navigate to Mail flow > Send connectors, and then click Add-Add Icon.In the New send connector wizard, specify a name for the send connector and then select Partner forthe Type. When you select Partner, the connector is configured to allow connections only to servers that authenticate with TLS certificates. Click Next.Verify that MX record associated with recipient domain is selected, which specifies that the connectoruses the domain name system (DNS) to route mail. Click Next.Under Address space, click Add-Add Icon. In the Add domain window, make sure SMTP is listed as theType. For Fully Qualified Domain Name (FQDN), enter the name of your partner domain. Click Save.For Source server, click Add-Add Icon. In the Select a server window, select a Mailbox server that willbe used to send mail to the Internet via the Client Access server and click Add-Add Icon. After you've selected the server, click Add-Add Icon. Click OK.Click Finish.References:

NEW QUESTION: 4 Which component of the NIST SP800-61 r2 incident handling strategy reviews data?
A. containment, eradication, and recovery
B. post-incident analysis
C. detection and analysis
D. preparation
Answer: B
Explanation: Explanation 3.4.2 Using Collected Incident Data (which falls under post incident analysis in the aforementioned document) Lessons learned activities should produce a set of objective and subjective data regarding each incident. Over time, the collected incident data should be useful in several capacities. The data, particularly the total hours of involvement and the cost, may be used to justify additional funding of the incident response team. A study of incident characteristics may indicate systemic security weaknesses and threats, as well as changes in incident trends. This data can be put back into the risk assessment process, ultimately leading to the selection and implementation of additional controls. Another good use of the data is measuring the success of the incident response team. If incident data is collected and stored properly, it should provide several measures of the success (or at least the activities) of the incident response team. Incident data can also be collected to determine if a change to incident response capabilities causes a corresponding change in the team's performance (e.g., improvements in efficiency, reductions in costs).
