NEW QUESTION: 1A cache tier device experiences a permanent disk failure.Which of the below represents a valid process for replacing the failed disk?A. 1. Using the vSphere Web Client, replace the failed disk with the hot spare disk.2. Physically replace the failed disk.B. 1. Using the vSphere Web Client, delete the failed disk from the vSAN cluster.2. Physically replace the failed disk.3. Using the vSphere Web Client, re-create the disk group.C. 1. The hot spare disk replaces the failed disk immediately.2. Physically replace the failed disk.D. 1. Physically replace the failed disk and vSAN automatically takes care of the rest of the process.Answer: B

Explanation:ExplanationWhen a flash device failure occurs, before physically removing the device from a host, you must decommission the device from Virtual SAN. The decommission process performs a number of operations in order to discard disk group memberships, deletes partitions and remove stale data from all disks.How to do it. Flash Device Decommission Procedure from the vSphere Web Client Log on to the vSphere Web Client Navigate to the Hosts and Clusters view and select the cluster object Go to the manage tab and select Disk management under the Virtual SAN section Select the disk group with the failed flash device Select the failed flash device and click the delete button

NEW QUESTION: 3A. Option BB. Option CC. Option DD. Option A Answer: B Explanation: See here:

<http://blogs.virtualizationadmin.com/lowe/2011/01/12/hyper-v-and-dpm-watch-out-for-this/> If you're here, you already know you love virtualization so it's tempting to, as new services come on board, add them to the virtual environment. But, be careful when you consider adding Data Protection Manager as a virtual service. If you do, you lose the key ability to fully protect Hyper-V-based workloads using DPM's native Hyper-V hooks. The reason: In order to fully protect Hyper-V with DPM, the DPM server requires that the Hyper-V role be installed on it. You can't install the Hyper-V role inside a virtual guest due to lack of VT/AMD-V capability inside the VM. Hence, you're out of luck. Let's talk specifics: In short, although you can still protect Hyper-V with a virtual DPM server, on the recovery side, you lose the ability to perform item-level restoration of items from inside a virtual machine. You can still protect individual virtual machine workloads by installing the DPM agent inside the virtual machine's guest OS at which point DPM sees that VM as just another system to be protected. My advice: Just go physical if you're deploying DPM, especially if you need that native Hyper-V support. NOTE: The text below was copied from a duplicate question in either case, DPM utilizes the Hyper-V VSS writer to synchronize block-level differences within the VHDs using a process called an "Express Full", which identifies which blocks have changed in the entire VHD and then sends just the updated blocks or fragments. This provides a complete and consistent image of the virtual hard disk files on the DPM server or appliance. DPM maintains up to 512 shadow copies of the full VHD set by storing only the block-level differences between any two images.
