NEW QUESTION: 2 One of the following statements about the differences between PPTP and L2TP is NOT trueA. PPTP can run only on top of IP networks.B. L2TP supports AAA serversC. PPTP is an encryption protocol and L2TP is not.D. L2TP works well with all firewalls and network devices that perform NAT.Answer: D*Explanation:L2TP is affected by packet header modification and cannot cope with firewalls and network devices that perform NAT."PPTP can run only on top of IP networks." is correct as PPTP encapsulates datagrams into an IP packet, allowing PPTP to route many network protocols across an IP network."PPTP is an encryption protocol and L2TP is not." is correct. When using PPTP, the PPP payload is encrypted with Microsoft Point-to-Point Encryption (MPPE) using MSCHAP or EAP-TLS."L2TP supports AAA servers" is correct as L2TP supports TACACS+ and RADIUS.NOTE:L2TP does work over NAT. It is possible to use a tunneled mode that wraps every packet into a UDP packet. Port 4500 is used for this purpose. However this is not true of PPTP and it is not true as well that it works well with all firewalls and NAT devices.References:All in One Third Edition page 545 Official Guide to the CISSP Exam page 124-126

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/understanding-active-directory-functional-levels.aspx>
After you set the domain functional level to a certain value in Windows Server 2008 R2, you cannot roll back or lower the domain functional level, with one exception: when you raise the domain functional level to Windows Server 2008 R2 and if the forest functional level is Windows Server 2008 or lower, you have the option of rolling the domain functional level back to Windows Server 2008. You can lower the domain functional level only from Windows Server 2008 R2 to Windows Server 2008. If the domain functional level is set to Windows Server 2008 R2, it cannot be rolled back, for example, to Windows Server 2003.
