To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area.NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.Answer: Explanation:Explanation $var1 = "SwitchIndependent"$var2 = "TransportPorts"Explanation/Reference: <https://docs.microsoft.com/en-us/windows-server/networking/technologies/nic-teaming/create-a-new-nic-te> Network configuration requirementsThe physical switch, Hyper-V Virtual Switch, local area network (LAN), and NIC Teaming requirements for creating a NIC Team in a VM are:The computer that is running Hyper-V must have two or more network adapters.If the network adapters are connected to multiple physical switches, the physical switches must be on the same Layer 2 subnet. You must use Hyper-V Manager or Windows PowerShell commands to create two external Hyper-V Virtual Switches, each of which is connected to a different physical switch. The VM in which you want to configure NIC Teaming must be connected to both external virtual switches that you create. The Windows Server 2016 NIC Teaming solution supports teams with two members in VMs. Larger teams can be created but such teams are not supported. NIC Teams within a VM must have their Teaming mode configured as Switch Independent. In addition, Load Balancing mode for the NIC Team in a VM must be configured with the Address Hash distribution mode.
