NEW QUESTION: 1You have a hosted Exchange organization. All servers in the organization have Exchange Server 2010 SP1 installed.You need to group a set of users for administrative delegation.What should you create?A. A new distribution group.B. A new role assignment policy.C. A new management role.D. A managed folder mailbox policy.Answer: B*Explanation: When you change role assignments, the changes you make will probably be between role groups and role assignment policies. By adding, removing, or modifying role assignments to or from these role assignees, you can control what permissions are given to your administrators and users, in effect turning on and off management of related features.Regular role assignments enable the role assignee to access the management role entries made available by the associated management role. If multiple management roles are assigned to a role assignee, the management role entries from each management role are aggregated and applied. This means that if a role assignee is assigned the Transport Rules and Journaling roles, the roles are combined, and all the associated management role entries are given to the role assignee. If the role assignee is a role group or role assignment policy, the permissions provided by the roles are then given to the users assigned to the role group or role assignment policy.The management role assignment policy is a special object in Exchange 2010. Users are associated with the role assignment policy when their mailboxes are created or if you change the role assignment policy on a mailbox. This is also what you assign end-user management roles to. The combination of all the roles on a role assignment policy defines everything that the user can manage on his or her mailbox or distribution groups.Reference:

NEW QUESTION: 2Your company has a private cloud that contains two Active Directory forests named contoso.com and adatum.com.The contoso.com network and the adatum.com network are separated by a firewall.No trusts exist between the forests.You deploy System Center 2012 Operations Manager to adatum.com.You install agents on 100 servers in both forests.You need to ensure that you can monitor all 100 servers.The solution must minimize the traffic between the two networks.What should you install? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose all that apply.) A. a gateway server in contoso.com B. a server certificate on the gateway server in contoso.com C. a gateway server in adatum.com D. a server certificate on the management server in adatum.com E. client certificates on all of the servers in contoso.com F. client certificates on all of the servers in adatum.com G. a server certificate on the gateway server in adatum.com Answer: A, B, D Explanation: About Gateway Servers in Operations Manager System Center 2012 - Operations Manager requires mutual authentication be performed between agents and management servers prior to the exchange of information between them. To secure the authentication process between the two, the process is encrypted. When the agent and the management server reside in the same Active Directory domain or in Active Directory domains that have established trust relationships, they make use of Kerberos V5 authentication mechanisms provided by Active Directory. When the agents and management servers do not lie within the same trust boundary, other mechanisms must be used to satisfy the secure mutual authentication requirement. In Operations Manager, this is accomplished through the use of X.509 certificates issued for each computer. If there are many agent-monitored computers, this results in high administrative overhead for managing all those certificates. In addition, if there is a firewall between the agents and management servers, multiple authorized endpoints must be defined and maintained in the firewall rules to allow communication between them. To reduce this administrative overhead, Operations Manager has a server role called the gateway server. Gateway servers are located within the trust boundary of the agents and can participate in the mandatory mutual authentication. Because they lie within the same trust boundary as the agents, the Kerberos V5 protocol for Active Directory is used between the agents and the gateway server. Each agent then communicates only with the gateway servers that it is aware of. The gateway servers communicate with the management servers. To support the mandatory secure mutual authentication between the gateway servers and the management servers, certificates must be issued and installed, but only for the gateway and management servers. This reduces the number of certificates required, and in the case of an intervening firewall it also reduces the number of authorized endpoints to be defined in the firewall rules. The following illustration shows the authentication relationships in a management group using a gateway server. <http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/hh212823.aspx> Similar to question 12 in exam A. Only difference is they switched the domains around.
