NEW QUESTION: 1An assessor identifies automated methods for identifying security control compliance through validating sensors at the endpoint and at Tier 2. Which of the following practices satisfy continuous monitoring of authorized information systems?A. Security test and evaluationB. Independent verification and validationC. Risk assessmentD. Ongoing authorizationAnswer: D*Explanation:Ongoing assessment and authorization is often referred to as continuous monitoring. It is a process that determines whether the set of deployed security controls in an information system continue to be effective with regards to planned and unplanned changes that occur in the system and its environment over time.Continuous monitoring allows organizations to evaluate the operating effectiveness of controls on or near a real-time basis. Continuous monitoring enables the enterprise to detect control failures quickly because it transpires immediately or closely after events in which the key controls are utilized.Incorrect Answers:A: Independent verification and validation (IV&V) is executed by a third party organization not involved in the development of a product. This is not considered continuous monitoring of authorized information systems.B: Security test and evaluation is not considered continuous monitoring of authorized information systems.C: Risk assessment is the identification of potential risks and threats. It is not considered continuous monitoring of authorized information systems.References:

NEW QUESTION: 3 Which is a best practice for High Availability (HA) in an Exadata environment?A. Oracle Exadata Storage Server Software HARD checks operate transparently after enabling DB_BLOCK_CHECKSUM on a database.B. Stretched RAC is the best alternative for Exadata that combines both HA and DR into one.C. Due to the different architecture that Exadata has with storage servers, compared to regular Storage Area Network, DB_LOST_WRITE_PROTECT need not be set.D. Checksums performed on the Exadata Storage Server ensure logical consistency of block content.E. When a standby database is in place, DB_BLOCK_CHECKING is not required and thus not recommended.Answer: A*Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Exadata storage cells include Oracle Hardware Assisted Resilient Data (HARD) to provide a unique level of validation for Oracle block data structures such as data block address, checksum, and magic numbers prior to allowing a write to physical disks. HARD validation with Exadata is automatic (setting DB_BLOCK_CHECKSUM is required to enable checksum validation). The HARD checks transparently handle all cases including Oracle ASM disk rebalance operations and disk failures.Incorrect: Not A: The checksum is used to validate that a block is not physically corrupt, detecting corruptions caused by underlying disks, storage systems, or I/O systems. Checksums do not ensure logical consistency of the block contents.Not B: MAA recommends that you set DB_BLOCK_CHECKING=MEDIUM or FULL on the physical standby as a minimum practice to prevent the standby from various logical block corruptions.Not D: The recommendation is: On the primary database: DB_LOST_WRITE_PROTECT=TYPICAL (default TYPICAL on Exadata) On the Data Guard Physical Standby Database: DB_LOST_WRITE_PROTECT=TYPICALNot E: Protection from a broad range of, but not all disasters While not a full disaster recovery (DR) solution, an Extended Distance Oracle RAC or Oracle RAC One Node deployment will provide protection from a broad range of disasters. For a full DR protection Oracle recommends deploying an Oracle RAC together with a local and a remote Oracle Data Guard setup as described in the Maximum Availability Architecture (MAA).
