NEW QUESTION: 1A customer planning to use SOFS connectors asks about high availability for their filesystem object store. Is this something that must be configured to use floating IPs that re-route traffic if a connector fails?Solution:Auto-ProxyA. YesB. NoAnswer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2DRAG DROPAnswer: Explanation:You can configure a different archive name when you use Windows PowerShell to enable archive mailboxes. For example, to name archive mailboxes "In-Place Archive - <display name>" when you enable archive mailboxes for all users in your organization, run the following commands:$users = Get-Mailbox -ResultSize unlimited -Filter { ArchiveStatus -Eq "None" -AND RecipientTypeDetails -eq 'UserMailbox'} ForEach ($a in $users) {$ a.ArchiveName.Add("In-Place Archive - $a")} $users | %{Enable-Mailbox $_.Identity -Archive -ArchiveName $_.ArchiveName} References: https://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/jj984357\(v=exchg.150\).aspx.aspx)

NEW QUESTION: 3You have created a public subnet in a VCN, and your public subnet has a Route Table, a Security List, and an Internet Gateway. However, none of the compute instances can connect to the Internet.Which two are possible reasons for the connectivity issue? (Choose two.)A. There is no Dynamic Routing Gateway (DRG) associated with the VCNB. The Route Table has no default route for routing traffic to the Internet GatewayC. There is no stateful ingress rule in the Security List associated with the public subnetD. There is no stateful egress rule in the Security List associated with the public subnetAnswer: B,DExplanation:ExplanationAn internet gateway as an optional virtual router that connects the edge of the VCN with the internet. To use the gateway, the hosts on both ends of the connection must have public IP addresses for routing. Connections that originate in your VCN and are destined for a public IP address (either inside or outside the VCN) go through the internet gateway. Connections that originate outside the VCN and are destined for a public IP address inside the VCN go through the internet gateway.Working with Internet GatewaysYou create an internet gateway in the context of a specific VCN. In other words, the internet gateway is automatically attached to a VCN. However, you can disable and re-enable the internet gateway at any time.Compare this with a dynamic routing gateway (DRG), which you create as a standalone object that you then attach to a particular VCN. DRGs use a different model because they're intended to be modular building blocks for privately connecting VCNs to your on-premises network.For traffic to flow between a subnet and an internet gateway, you must create a route rule accordingly in the subnet's route table (for example, destination CIDR = 0.0.0.0/0 and target = internet gateway). If the internet gateway is disabled, that means no traffic will flow to or from the internet even if there's a route rule that enables that traffic. For more information, see Route Tables. For the purposes of access control, you must specify the compartment where you want the internet gateway to reside. If you're not sure which compartment to use, put the internet gateway in the same compartment as the cloud network. For more information, see Access Control. You may optionally assign a friendly name to the internet gateway. It doesn't have to be unique, and you can change it later. Oracle automatically assigns the internet gateway a unique identifier called an Oracle Cloud ID (OCID). For more information, see Resource Identifiers. To delete an internet gateway, it does not have to be disabled, but there must not be a route table that lists it as a target. AS per compute instances can connect to the Internet so you use egress no ingress
