D. Transaction LTR on SLT
Answer: C,D

NEW QUESTION: 2Which GUI option forces arrays to use only the preset number of drives when adding or editing arrays in Capacity Magic?
A. Optimize for capacity
B. Use child pools
C. Use RxC
D. Optimize for performance
Answer: A
Explanation: The GUI storage configuration wizard does not know that this storage is mapped to another SAN Volume Controller/Storwize, it can create unbalanced arrays (when optimize for capacity is chosen) or it can leave some drives unconfigured (if optimize for performance is chosen).

NEW QUESTION: 3Like OSPFv2, OSPFv3 support virtual link. Which two statements are true about the IPv6 address of a virtual neighbor? (Choose two.)
A. It is in the global scope address, and it is discovered by examining the intra-area-prefix-LSA received by the virtual neighbor.
B. Only prefixes with the LA-bit not set can be used as a virtual neighbor address.
C. It is in the link-local address, and it is discovered by examining link LSA received by the virtual neighbor.
D. It is in the global scope address, and it is discovered by examining the router LSA received by the virtual neighbor.
E. Only prefixes with the LA-bit set can be used as a virtual neighbor address.
F. It is in the link-local address, and it is discovered by examining the hello packet received from the virtual neighbor.
Answer: A,E
Explanation: OSPF for IPv6 assumes that each router has been assigned link-local unicast addresses on each of the router's attached physical links. On all OSPF interfaces except virtual links, OSPF packets are sent using the interface's associated link-local unicast address as the source address. A router learns the link-local addresses of all other routers attached to its link and uses these addresses as next-hop information during packet forwarding. On virtual links, a global scope IPv6 address MUST be used as the source address for OSPF protocol packets. The collection of intra-area-prefix-LSAs originated by the virtual neighbor is examined, with the virtual neighbor's IP address being set to the first prefix encountered with the LA-bit set.
