Each question is independent of the other question in the series. Information and details provided in a question apply only to that question.You have a database named DB1. The database does not use a memory-optimized filegroup. The database contains a table named Table1. The table must support the following workloads:You need to add the most efficient index to support the new OLTP workload, while not deteriorating the existing Reporting query performance.What should you do?A. Create a nonclustered columnstore index on the table.B. Create a clustered index on the table.C. Create a nonclustered filtered index on the table.D. Create a clusteredcolumnstore index on the table.E. Create a hash index on the table.F. Create a nonclustered index on the table.Answer: CExplanation:ExplanationA filtered index is an optimized nonclustered index, especially suited to cover queries that select from a well-defined subset of data. It uses a filter predicate to index a portion of rows in the table. A well-designed filtered index can improve query performance, reduce index maintenance costs, and reduce index storage costs compared with full-table indexes.References:
