NEW QUESTION: 1You administer a SQL Server 2008 infrastructure. An instance hosts a business-critical database that must be continuously available to the users without data loss. The database includes Filestream data. You need to implement a high-availability solution for the site. Which solution should you use? A. Database snapshot B. Synchronous database mirroring with a witness server C. Asynchronous database mirroring D. Failover clustering
Answer: D
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Failover clustering in SQL Server provides high-availability support for an entire SQL Server instance. For example, you can configure a SQL Server instance on one node of a failover cluster to fail over to any other node in the cluster during a hardware failure, operating system failure, or a planned upgrade. A failover cluster is a combination of one or more nodes (servers) with two or more shared disks, known as a resource group. The combination of a resource group, along with its network name, and an internet protocol (IP) address that makes up the clustered application or server, is referred to as a failover cluster or a failover cluster lrrstar.ce. A SQL Server failover cluster appears on the network as if it were a single computer, but has functionality that provides failover from one node to another if the current node becomes unavailable. A failover cluster appears on the network as a normal application or single computer, but it has additional functionality that increases its availability. Failover clustering has a new architecture and new work flow for all Setup scenarios in SQL Server 2008. The two options for installation are Integrated installation and Advanced Enterprise installation. Integrated installation creates and configures a single-node SQL Server failover cluster instance. Additional nodes are added using add node functionality in Setup. For example, for Integrated installation, you run Setup to create a single-node failover cluster. Then, you run Setup again for each node you want to add to the cluster. Advanced Enterprise installation consists of two steps. The Prepare step prepares all nodes of the failover cluster to be operational. Nodes are defined and prepared during this initial step. After you prepare the nodes, the Complete step is run on the active nodes—the node that owns the shared disk—to complete the failover cluster instance and make it operational. When to Use Failover Clustering Use failover clustering to:- Administer a failover cluster from any node in the clustered SQL Server configuration. For more information, see Installing a SQL Server 2008 Failover Cluster. Allow one failover cluster node to fail over to any other node in the failover cluster configuration. For more information, see Installing a SQL Server 2008 Failover Cluster.* Configure Analysis Services for failover clustering. For more information, see How to: install Analysis Services on a failover cluster.* Execute full-text queries by using the Microsoft Search engine with failover clustering. For more information, see Using SQL Server Tools with Failover Clustering.

NEW QUESTION: 2Based on the network diagram (click the Exhibit Button). Router 1 installs network D in its routing table following a dynamic routing update from Router 2. Which of the following describes the information that will be installed in the routing table?A. 172.16.9.0/24 next-hop 10.10.10.3B. 172.16.9.0/24 next-hop 10.10.10.1C. 172.16.9.0/24 next-hop 10.10.10.2D. 0.0.0.0/32 next-hop 172.16.9.1Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3You have an Exchange Server 2013 organization that contains a server named EX1. Your network contains a non-critical internal application that regularly connects to the POP3 Service on EX1. Users report that Outlook Web App performs more slowly than usual. You discover that EX1 frequently has a CPU utilization that is greater than 85 percent. You need to configure EX1 temporarily to allocate more processor resources to Outlook Web App and to allocate less processor resources to POP3. Which two new policies should you create? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)A. a throttling policy that sets OWA MaxConcurrency to 25B. a workload policy for POP3 that sets the WorkloadClassification to DiscretionaryC. a workload policy for POP3 that sets the WorkloadClassification to CustomerExpectationD. a workload policy for Outlook Web App that sets the WorkloadClassification to DiscretionaryE. a workload policy for Outlook Web App that sets the WorkloadClassification to CustomerExpectationF. a throttling policy that sets PopMaxConcurrency to 25Answer: B,E
