NEW QUESTION: 1 Assume that you have to manage a network with several remote locations. You are told that you need to collect performance data from each remote location to access the total traffic that goes to the corporate office, that go to other remote locations, and that go outside of the organization. Your low-bandwidth WAN connection that goes to the NOC does not have enough bandwidth to allow for export of all of the data from the remote locations. What other option should you pursue?A. Use IF-MIB and CISCO-IF-EXTENSION-MIB to measure egress transmission efficiency.B. Use time-division multiplexing algorithms to estimate performance data based on WAN bandwidth.C. Use historical data to estimate information at remote locations.D. Use baseline performance information to calculate offset based on WAN bandwidth.E. Use a remote-management application to collect data at the remote site and send back the aggregated information.Answer: E

NEW QUESTION: 2 For optimal usability and adoption, a solution must do what. (Select all that apply)A. Have trusted data.B. Be inexpensive so users don't worry about the bottom line when using the application.C. Provide value so users perceive it as a valuable spending of their time.D. Provide both online help and hard copy reference materials to assist users at all times.E. Be easy to use so users can easily enter data and find information.F. Be easy to change through a change maAnswer: A,C,E,F

NEW QUESTION: 3 Which statement about OSPF multiaccess segments is true?A. The designated and backup designated routers are elected at the same time.B. The backup designated router is elected first.C. The router that sent the first hello message is elected first.D. The designated router is elected first.Answer: B*Explanation: According to the RFC, the BDR is actually elected first, followed by the DR. The RFC explains why: "The reason behind the election algorithm's complexity is the desire for an orderly transition from Backup Designated Router to Designated Router, when the current Designated Router fails. This orderly transition is ensured through the introduction of hysteresis: no new Backup Designated Router can be chosen until the old Backup accepts its new Designated Router responsibilities. The above procedure may elect the same router to be both Designated Router and Backup Designated Router, although that router will never be the calculating router (Router X) itself."
