NEW QUESTION: 3What are two recommended ways of protecting network device configuration files from outside network security threats? (Choose two.)A. Use a firewall to restrict access from the outside to the network devices.B. Allow unrestricted access to the console or VTY ports.C. Use SSH or another encrypted and authenticated transport to access device configurations.D. Always use Telnet to access the device command line because its data is automatically encrypted.E. Prevent the loss of passwords by disabling password encryption.

Answer: A,CExplanation:This question is to examine the knowledge point related to network security. Internet firewall is a or a group of systems, which will enhance the in-house network security of a mechanism. It decides which in-house services can be accessed by the outside, which people from the outside can access what in-house services and which outside services can be accessed by in-house personnel. Firewall is an Internet customs inspection post. So as to keep the effectiveness of the firewall, all the information in or out of the Internet must flow through the firewall and being checked by it. Only the authorized data is allowed to pass through the firewall and the firewall itself must be free of infiltration. Unfortunately, once the firewall system has been break through or roundabout, it is incapable of providing any protection.SSH is the abbreviation of Secure Shell, which is established by the Network

Working Group of IETF. SSH is a secure protocol which is based on application layer and transport layer.
