NEW QUESTION: 1 Which option describes how a switch in rapid PVST+ mode responds to a topology change?
A. It sets a timer to delete dynamic MAC addresses that were learned by all ports on the switch.
B. It immediately deletes all MAC addresses that were learned dynamically by ports in the same STP instance.
C. It immediately deletes dynamic MAC addresses that were learned by all ports on the switch.
D. It sets a timer to delete all MAC addresses that were learned dynamically by ports in the same STP instance.
Answer: B
Explanation: Rapid PVST+ This spanning-tree mode is the same as PVST+ except that it uses a rapid convergence based on the IEEE 802.1w standard. To provide rapid convergence, the rapid PVST+ immediately deletes dynamically learned MAC address entries on a per-port basis upon receiving a topology change. By contrast, PVST+ uses a short aging time for dynamically learned MAC address entries. The rapid PVST+ uses the same configuration as PVST+ (except where noted), and the switch needs only minimal extra configuration. The benefit of rapid PVST+ is that you can migrate a large PVST+ install base to rapid PVST+ without having to learn the complexities of the MSTP configuration and without having to re-provision your network. In rapid-PVST+ mode, each VLAN runs its own spanning-tree instance up to the maximum supported.
