NEW QUESTION: 2 You have a web application leveraging an Elastic Load Balancer (ELB). In front of the web servers deployed using an Auto Scaling Group Your database is running on Relational Database Service (RDS) The application serves out technical articles and responses to them in general there are more views of an article than there are responses to the article. On occasion, an article on the site becomes extremely popular resulting in significant traffic increases that causes the site to go down. What could you do to help alleviate the pressure on the infrastructure while maintaining availability during these events? (Choose three.) A. Add RDS read-replicas for the read traffic going to your relational database B. Use SQS to queue up the requests for the technical posts and deliver them out of the queue. C. Leverage ElastiCache for caching the most frequently used data. D. Leverage CloudFront for the delivery of the articles. E. Use Route53 health checks to fail over to an S3 bucket for an error page. Answer: A,C,D Explanation: Explanation E is wrong, we are not using multiple regions, Route53 ELB-failover is not required. D is wrong, SQS will only add to the strain on the server, and is not useful in this situation. A is correct, as you can have users read from edge locations B is correct, as you can service reads with read-replicas C is correct, ElastiCache would assist in this situation.
