NEW QUESTION: 4Which two options describe two functions of a neighbor solicitation message? (Choose two.)A. It requests the link-layer address of the target.B. It requests the site-local address of the target.C. It provides its own site-local address to the target.D. It provides its own admin-local address to the target.E. It provides its own link-layer address to the target.F. It requests the admin-local address of the target.Answer: A,EExplanation:

Neighbor solicitation messages are sent on the local link when a node wants to determine the link-layer address of another node on the same local link (see the figure below). When a node wants to determine the link-layer address of another node, the source address in a neighbor solicitation message is the IPv6 address of the node sending the neighbor solicitation message. The destination address in the neighbor solicitation message is the solicited-node multicast address that corresponds to the IPv6 address of the destination node. The neighbor solicitation message also includes the link-layer address of the source node. Figure 1. IPv6 Neighbor Discovery: Neighbor Solicitation Message After receiving the neighbor solicitation message, the destination node replies by sending a neighbor advertisement message, which has a value of 136 in the Type field of the ICMP packet header, on the local link. The source address in the neighbor advertisement message is the IPv6 address of the node (more specifically, the IPv6 address of the node interface) sending the neighbor advertisement message. The destination address in the neighbor advertisement message is the IPv6 address of the node that sent the neighbor solicitation message. The data portion of the neighbor advertisement message includes the link-layer address of the node sending the neighbor advertisement message. After the source node receives the neighbor advertisement, the source node and destination node can communicate.
