research on which his advice to the client is based?I. The investment adviser representative recommends the same asset allocation for his client that a buddy of his did after his buddy had done some research for a client with similar characteristics.II. The investment adviser representative provides a recommendation for his client based on research provided by a broker-dealer that provides the investment adviser with its analysts' recommendations in return for trades that the investment adviser executes using the services of the broker-dealer, as well as a couple of other research sources he finds on the internet.III. The investment adviser representative submitted his client's information to a data base that provided a recommendation for the asset allocation of the client's investment monies that the adviser deemed was sound and, therefore, recommended it to his client.A. I and III onlyB. III onlyC. I onlyD. II onlyAnswer: A Explanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation: An investment adviser representative is required to disclose the fact that someone else performed the research on which advice to the client is based in scenarios described in I and III only. If the representative provides a recommendation to the client based solely on the recommendations provided by others to whom he provided the data, he must disclose this. However, if the adviser representative has based his recommendations on his own assessment of analysts' reports and recommendations, as is suggested in Selection II, then there is no disclosure requirement.
