NEW QUESTION: 3Refer to the exhibit. You have noticed that several users in the network are consuming a great deal of bandwidth for the peer-to-peer application Kazaa2. You would like to limit this traffic, and at the same time provide a guaranteed 100 kb/s bandwidth for one of your servers. After applying the configuration in the exhibit, you notice no change in the bandwidth utilization on the serial link; it is still heavily oversubscribing the interface. What is the cause of this problem?A. In class Kazaa2, you should configure a policer instead of a drop command.B. Kazaa2 is not a valid protocol.C. CEF needs to be enabled for NBAR.D. The bandwidth parameter on serial 0/0 is wrong.E. The server class should have a priority of 100.Answer: C
Explanation:ExplanationYou need to enable Cisco Express Forwarding (CEF) in order to use NBAR.How do you configure Cisco IOS NBAR?Keep in mind that in its simplest form NBAR is a traffic identification and marking system. Whatyou do with the marked packets is up to you. For example, you could choose to drop them orchoose to give them a higher quality of service. Configuring and using NBAR to identify and block traffic is actually very easy. Let's walk throughthe steps.Step 1Make sure that CEF is on using the following command:Router(config)# ip cefStep 2Create a class-map, identifying the traffic you want to block. Here's an example that would stopany HTTP or MIME e-mail that contains the Readme.exe program:
Router(config)#class-map match-any bad-trafficRouter(config-cmap)# match protocol http url "*readme.exe*"Router(config-cmap)# match protocol http mime "*readme.exe*"I want to stress here that HTTP is just one of the many applications that NBAR can identify. For listof NBAR applications recognized with IOS version 12.3, use the following commands:
Router(config)#class-map match-all nbarRouter(config-cmap)#match pro ?Step 3Create a policy to mark the traffic. Here's an example:Router(config)# policy-map mark-bad-trafficRouter(config-pmap)# class bad-trafficRouter(config-pmap)# set ip dscp 1Step 4Apply the policy to the interface that faces the Internet or the source of the traffic that you want toblock. This marks the traffic when it enters the router. Here's an example:Router(config)# interface serial 0/0Router(config-if)#service-policy input mark-bad-trafficStep 5Create an access control list (ACL) that denies the marked traffic. Here's an example:Router(config)# access-list 190 deny ip any any dscp 1Router(config)# access-list 190 permit ip any anyStep 6Deny the marked traffic as it's about to exit your router by applying the ACL to an interface. Here'san example:

Router(config)# interface GigabitEthernet 0/0Router(config-if)# ip access-group 190 outWhen you've finished applying the configuration, you can check to see if the router marked and dropped any traffic that met this criteria. To do this, use the show access-lists command. Summary NBAR is a very powerful application-layer firewall that you may already have installed on your Cisco router. While traditional firewalls can only recognize traffic based on IOS Layers 3 or 4, Cisco's NBAR can go all the way to Layer 7. Reference
