NEW QUESTION: 3 A system administrator needs to collect Performance Monitoring Infrastructure (PMI) data on response time of a servlet. The system administrator wishes to use HTTP to avoid issues with firewalls and needs XML as output. How can the system administrator achieve this? A. Use J2EE managed object MBeans B. Use WebSphere Application Server PMI Perf MBean C. Use Performance Servlet D. Use PMI Client API Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 4 A performance test team was testing the capacity of concurrent users of a web application deployed on a multi-processor server. While testing 250 concurrent users, the administrator discovers connections to the database are failing. In response, a system administrator increased the connection pool to the maximum limit which the database allows and increased the prepared statement cache size. The test passed, but the application response time was slower. How should the system administrator tune the data source properties to improve the application response time? A. Decrease connection pool reap time. B. Change connection pools purge policy. C. Decrease the prepared statement cache size. D. Decrease number of free pool partitions. Answer: C Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: The higher the statement cache, the more system resources are delayed. Therefore, if you set the number too high, you might lack resources because your system cannot open multiple prepared statements.
