NEW QUESTION: 1Ein Projektmanager eines Projekts, dessen Fertigstellung 18 Monate in Anspruch nehmen soll, gibt bekannt, dass sich das Projekt in einer gesunden finanziellen Lage befindet, da nach 6 Monaten nur ein Sechstel des Budgets ausgegeben wurde. Der IS-Prüfer sollte ZUERST feststellen:A. Wenn das Projektbudget reduziert werden kann.B. Wenn das Projekt vorzeitig eingeleitet werden konnte.C. Wenn die Budgeteinsparungen zur Erweiterung des Projektumfangs verwendet werden können.D. Wie viel Fortschritt wurde gegen den Zeitplan erzielt?Answer: D
Explanation:Erläuterung:Die Kostenleistung eines Projekts kann nicht isoliert von der terminlichen Leistung beurteilt werden. Die Kosten können nicht einfach anhand der für ein Projekt verstrichenen Zeit beurteilt werden. Um den Stand des Projektbudgets richtig einschätzen zu können, ist es erforderlich zu wissen, wie viel Fortschritt tatsächlich erzielt wurde und in Anbetracht dessen, welche Ausgaben zu erwarten sind. Möglicherweise scheinen die Projektausgaben gering zu sein, da die tatsächlichen Fortschritte nur langsam erzielt wurden. Bis die Analyse des Projekts gegen den Zeitplan abgeschlossen ist, ist es unmöglich zu wissen, ob es einen Grund gibt, das Budget zu reduzieren. Wenn das Projekt hinter dem Zeitplan zurückgerutscht ist, gibt es möglicherweise nicht nur kein freies Budget, sondern es ist auch möglich, dass zusätzliche Ausgaben anfallen benötigt werden, um den Schlupf wiederzugewinnen. Die geringen Ausgaben könnten tatsächlich repräsentativ für eine Situation sein, in der das Projekt wahrscheinlich Fristen versäumt, anstatt möglicherweise vorzeitig zu erfolgen. Wenn sich herausstellt, dass das Projekt nach Anpassung an den tatsächlichen Fortschritt über dem Budget liegt, ist dies nicht unbedingt ein gutes Ergebnis, da es auf Mängel im ursprünglichen Budgetierungsprozess hinweist. und wie oben erwähnt, kann bis zur weiteren Analyse nicht festgestellt werden, ob tatsächlich Reservefonds vorhanden sind. Wenn das Projekt im Verzug ist, ist es möglicherweise falsch, Umfang hinzuzufügen.

NEW QUESTION: 2The prevention of illness through vaccination occurs due to the formation of A. mast cells.B. memory cells.C. immunosurveillance.D. helper B cells.Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3Bryan Galloway is a strategist for JS Investments, a small money management firm. His goal is to analyze industries to determine whether there is justification for over- or under-weighting. His supervisor, Robyn Black, CFA, has asked that he document the process he uses to make his recommendations. However, just to be sure that Galloway understands industry analysis. Black asks him to provide examples of supply and demand analysis. Galloway makes the following two statements to prove that he understands the issue:

Statement 1: In analyzing supply in the tire and rubber industry, it is clear that the sale of each additional automobile will result in the sale of approximately two winter tires. Statement 2: In analyzing demand for services in the healthcare industry, for every 100 new hospital beds required, 20 additional doctors are needed. Black is not entirely confident in Galloway's abilities to analyze various industries, but decides to allow him to continue with his analysis. Four of the largest holdings for JS Investments are a tobacco company, a soda drink company, an oil company, and a cable TV company. Black is worried that government intervention will have a serious impact on future growth for these companies and asks Galloway to further research each of the industries involved. However, just to make sure Galloway can handle this project. Black first asks him to review the basics of industry analysis. In reviewing the factors affecting pricing considerations, Galloway concludes that all of the following are of direct importance: Factor 1: Price changes in key supply inputs. Factor 2: Product segmentation. Factor 3: Ease of entry into the industry. Factor 4: Degree of industry concentration. Galloway also makes the following statements about the characteristics of the phases of the industrial life cycle: Characteristic 1: Participants compete for market share in a stable industry. Characteristic 2: Changing tastes have an important impact on the industry. Characteristic 3: It is not clear that a product will be accepted in the industry. Characteristic 4: Proper execution of strategy is critical. Each of the phases is represented by one characteristic. Did Galloway correctly identify the factors that directly affect pricing considerations? A. No, changing tastes do not have a direct impact on pricing. B. No, competition for market share in a stable industry is not a pricing consideration. C. Yes. Answer: C Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: The four factors that contribute to pricing as listed in the relevant topic review are: product segmentation, degree of industry concentration, ease of industry entry, and price changes in key supply inputs. Galloway has correctly identified all four. (Study Session U, LOS 38.0)
