NEW QUESTION: 3 A change in credit policy has caused an increase in sales, an increase in discounts taken, a reduction in the investment in accounts receivable, and a reduction in the number of doubtful accounts. Based upon this information, we know that: A. The average collection period has decreased. B. Gross profit has declined. C. The size of the discount offered has decreased. D. Net profit has increased. Answer: A Explanation: Choice "b" is correct. Whenever accounts receivable (AR) are decreasing when sales are increasing (and the decrease in AR is not due to an increase in bad debt write offs), this would indicate that the average collection period for AR has decreased. Choices "a", "c", and "d" are incorrect. There is insufficient information in the question to draw conclusions about these items.
