NEW QUESTION: 1 A live test of a mutual agreement for IT system recovery has been carried out, including a four-hour test of intensive usage by the business units. The test has been successful, but gives only partial assurance that the:
A. workflow of actual business operations can use the emergency system in case of a disaster.
B. connectivity to the applications at the remote site meets response time requirements.
C. system and the IT operations team can sustain operations in the emergency environment.
D. resources and the environment could sustain the transaction load.
Answer: C
Explanation: The applications have been intensively operated, therefore choices B, C and D have been actually tested, but the capability of the system and the IT operations team to sustain and support this environment (ancillary operations, batch closing, error corrections, output distribution, etc.) is only partially tested.

NEW QUESTION: 3 In the year 1860, the reputation of Doctor Wybrow as a London physician reached its highest point. It was reported on good authority that he was in receipt of one of the largest incomes derived from the practice of medicine in modern times. One afternoon, towards the close of the London season, the doctor had just taken his luncheon after a specially hard morning's work in his consulting-room, and with a formidable list of visits to patients at their own houses to fill up the rest of his day--when the servant announced that a lady wished to speak to him. "Who is she?" the Doctor asked. "A stranger?" "Yes, sir." "I see no strangers out of consulting-hours. Tell her what the hours are, and send her away." "I have told her, sir." "Well?" "And she won't go." "Won't go?" The doctor smiled as he repeated the words. He was a humorist in his way; and there was an absurd side to the situation which rather amused him. "Has this obstinate lady given you her name?" he inquired. "No, sir. She refused to give any name--she said she wouldn't keep you five minutes, and the matter was too important to wait till to-morrow. There she is in the consulting-room; and how to get her out again is more than I know." Doctor Wybrow considered for a moment. His knowledge of women (professionally speaking) rested on the ripe experience of more than thirty years; he had met with them in all their varieties--especially the variety which knows nothing of the value of time, and never hesitates at sheltering itself behind the privileges of its sex. A glance at his watch informed him that he must soon begin his rounds among the patients who were waiting for him at their own houses. He decided forthwith on taking the only wise course that was open under the circumstances. In other words, he decided on taking to flight. "Is the carriage at the door?" he asked. "Yes, sir." "Very well. Open the house-door for me without making any noise, and leave the lady in undisturbed possession of the consulting-room. When she gets tired of waiting, you know what to tell her. If she asks when I am expected to return, say that I dine at my club, and spend the evening at the theatre. Now then, softly, Thomas! If your shoes creak, I am a lost man." What was the female characteristic that was most often observed by Doctor Wybrow? A. They were all at the same a most peculiarly stubborn species. B. Once their mind was committed to something, it was impossible to change. C. When set upon a mission or no, the element of an appreciation of time is escaped. D. Notwithstanding their generally good nature, if cornered, they could become reticent. E. When it comes to determination, there is no creature on earth so prepared to fixate. Answer: C Explanation: Explanation/Reference: The good narrator tells us that "his knowledge of women," and he had met with all kinds, "especially the variety which knows nothing of the value of time," making Choice D correct.
