NEW QUESTION: 1 An auditor concludes that there is a material inconsistency in the other information in an annual report to shareholders containing audited financial statements. The auditor believes that the financial statements do not require revision, but the client is unwilling to revise or eliminate the material inconsistency in the other information. Under these circumstances, what action would the auditor most likely take? A. Consider the situation closed because the other information is not in the audited financial statements. B. Disclaim an opinion on the financial statements after explaining the material inconsistency in a separate explanatory paragraph. C. Revise the auditor's report to include a separate explanatory paragraph describing the material inconsistency. D. Issue an "except for" qualified opinion after discussing the matter with the client's audit committee. Answer: C Explanation:

Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Choice "D" is correct. If the auditor discovers a material inconsistency in other information accompanying the audited financial statements, the financial statements do not require revision, and the client refuses to eliminate or revise the inconsistency, the auditor should consider 1) revising the report to include a separate paragraph describing the inconsistency, 2) withholding the report, or 3) withdrawing from the engagement. Choice "A" is incorrect. Even though the auditor has no responsibility to audit or otherwise corroborate other information accompanying the financial statements, the auditor has a responsibility to read the other information accompanying the financial statements for consistency and to identify any material misstatements of fact included therein. Choice "B" is incorrect. A qualified opinion is generally not warranted because the financial statements are fairly stated. Choice "C" is incorrect. A disclaimer of opinion is generally not warranted because there is no limitation on scope.
