NEW QUESTION: 1 Which procedure uses H.225 messages to exchange H.245 Master-Slave Determination information?
A. H.245 terminal capability set
B. H.323 early media
C. H.323 Fast Connect
D. H.225 tunneling
E. H.245 tunneling
Answer: E
Explanation: The H.245 protocol is a media control protocol that is a part of H.323 protocol suite. The H.245 protocol is used primarily to negotiate master-slave relationship between communicating endpoints. These endpoints exchange terminal capabilities and logical channel manipulations (open, close, modify). The H.245 messages can be encapsulated and carried between H.225 controlled endpoints within H.225 messages. This way of "piggy-backing" an H.245 message to H.225 message is referred to as H245 Tunneling. The H.245 Tunneling method is optional and negotiable between communicating H.323 endpoints. If both endpoints support this option, usually the H.245 Media Controlled messages are exchanged via the Tunneling method.
