NEW QUESTION: 4 You are a contract project manager working with the State of Bliss. Your latest project involves rewriting the Department of Revenue's income tax system. As project manager, you have taken all the appropriate actions regarding confidentiality of data. One of the key stakeholders is a huge movie buff, and she has the power to promote you into a better position at the conclusion of this project. She's reviewing some report data that just happens to include confidential information regarding one of her favorite movie superstars. What is the most appropriate response?
A. Do nothing, because she has the proper level of access rights to the data and this information showed up unintentionally.
B. Report her to the management team.
C. Request that she immediately return the information, citing conflict of interest and violation of confidential company data.
D. Request that she immediately return the information until you can confirm that she has the proper level of access rights to the data.
Answer: A
Explanation: As project manager, it's your responsibility to make sure the people you will be sharing data with have the proper permissions to see the data; this question indicated that you did that. In this case, D is not correct because it implies that you did not verify ahead of time that the stake-holder had the proper level of approvals to use the data.
