NEW QUESTION: 1 A data center provider has designed a network using these requirements:- Two data center sites are connected to the public Internet.- Both data centers are connected to different Internet providers.- Both data centers are also directly connected with a private connection for the internal traffic, and public Internet traffic can also be routed at this direct connection.- The data center provider has only one /19 public IP address block. Under normal conditions, Internet traffic should be routed directly to the data center where the services are located. When one Internet connection fails, the complete traffic for both data centers should be routed by using the remaining Internet connection. In which two ways can this routing be achieved? (Choose two.)A. One /20 block is used for the first data center and the second /20 block is used for the second data center. Each /20 block is only sent out locally. The /19 block is sent out at both Internet connections for the backup case to reroute the traffic through the remaining Internet connection.B. The data center provider must have an additional public IP address block for this routing.C. One /20 block is used for the first data center and the second /20 block is used for the second data center. The /20 block from the local data center is sent out with a low BGP weight and the /20 block from the remote data center is sent out with a higher BGP weight at both sites.D. One /20 block is used for the first data center and the second /20 block is used for the second data center. The /20 block from the local data center is sent out with a low BGP local preference and the /20 block from the remote data center is sent out with a higher BGP local preference at both sites.E. BGP will always load-balance the traffic to both data center sites.F. One /20 block is used for the first data center and the second /20 block is used for the second data center. The /20 block from the local data center is sent out without path prepending and the /20 block from the remote data center is sent out with path prepending at both sites.Answer: A, F Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation:

NEW QUESTION: 3 HOTSPOT Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com. All client computers run Windows 8. An administrator creates an application control policy and links the policy to an organizational unit (OU) named OU1. The application control policy contains several deny rules. The deny rules apply to the Everyone group. You need to prevent users from running the denied application. What should you configure? To answer, select the appropriate object in the answer area. Answer: Explanation: Explanation: To enable the Enforce rules enforcement setting by using the Local Security Policy snap-in 1. Click Start, type secpol.msc in the Search programs and files box, and then press ENTER. 2. If the User Account Control dialog box appears, confirm that the action it displays is what you want, and then click Yes. 3. In the console tree, double-click Application Control Policies, right-click AppLocker, and then click Properties. 4. On the Enforcement tab, select the Configured check box for the rule collection that you want to enforce, and then verify that Enforce rules is selected in the list for that rule collection. 5. Repeat step 4 to configure the enforcement setting to Enforce rules for additional rule collections. 6. Click OK. You should apply an application control policy for executable rules. When AppLocker policies from various GPOs are merged, both the rules and the enforcement modes are merged. The most similar Group Policy setting is used for the enforcement mode, and all rules from linked GPOs are applied.
