NEW QUESTION: 1 A statistical anomaly-based intrusion detection system:
A. Acquires data to establish a normal system operating profile.
B. Will detect an attack that does not significantly change the system's operating characteristics.
C. Refers to a database of known attack signatures.
D. Does not report an event that caused a momentary anomaly in the system.

Answer: A
Explanation: The correct answer is "Acquires data to establish a normal system operating profile". A statistical anomaly-based intrusion detection system acquires data to establish a normal system operating profile. Answer "Refers to a database of known attack signatures" is incorrect because it is used in signature-based intrusion detection. Answer "Will detect an attack that does not significantly change the system's operating characteristics." is incorrect because a statistical anomaly-based intrusion detection system will not detect an attack that does not significantly change the system operating characteristics. Similarly, answer "Does not report an event that caused a momentary anomaly in the system." is incorrect because the statistical anomaly-based IDS is susceptible to reporting an event that caused a momentary anomaly in the system.
